

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter presents the conclusion of the research and the suggestion for the further researcher:

A. Conclusion

Based on the research done toward The New York Times and The Jakarta Post which aims to discover critical discourse analysis used by those two newspapers with the special reference of Ahok's blasphemy allegation and the differences between them, the researcher draws a conclusion. This study has shown that there are three types of critical discourse analysis used by The New York Times and The Jakarta Post. They are cognitive component, social component, and discourse component.

The finding incidentally shows that both The New York Times and The Jakarta Post have the same order of critical discourse analysis component use. From the research we can infer that the most used component of critical discourse analysis is cognitive component, followed by discourse component and lastly with the smallest frequency of being used is social component.

B. Suggestion

Considering the conclusion above, the researcher would like to give some suggestions to the further researchers. Because of this study is analysis type, if the further researchers intend to do the same thing, try to understand first what you are going to search. Make a list of problems that you want to answer. Try to search a related literature which have discussed about it before. It will help you to make the outline of your study. Then try to search an appropriate theory related to it. There are many experts in critical discourse analysis, however there is no one who name their theories as Critical Discourse Analysis Theory. All of them name their theory with different name, so do not be shocked. After you find the theory, formulate the methodology. Do not forget to always consult with your teacher or advisor.
