

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSSION AND SUGGESTION

In this chapter, the writer will give the conclusion of the analysis of the novel, and some suggestions that can hopefully give benefit to the teachers, students of English and the readers.

A. Conclusion

After analyzing the novel The Lonely Lady by Harold Robbins that is connected with the research problems, it can be concluded three parts. They are Jeri Lee's personality, her loneliness and her efforts to face her loneliness. Each one will be explain briefly.

1. Jeri Lee is protagonist round character. She is protagonist because she has good characteristics that happen in all her life, such as kind and clever. Actually these characteristics are dominant and they can be shown since she is child, but these do not appear because she faces many problems and hard truth. But after her problems are solved these good characteristics can be seen again. It is approved that her relationship with her mother is fine again and she can get the Oscar for her writing. She is kind and clever girl. She is round character because her personalities are developed, she can be kind girl, honest, clever and independent. But she can change to be angry, stubborn, uncontrolled in her desire etc. These characters happen at her in all her life. She faces many problems and challenge so it makes his personality changes also from one characteristic to another.

2. Based on the causes, Jeri Lee faces three kinds of loneliness. First is behavioral loneliness, she faces it when she divorces with her husband. The second is cognitive loneliness, this happens when she can not share her works to Fred. And the last is emotional loneliness, it appears at her when Fred leaves her. But most of loneliness that happens at her is behavioral loneliness. And the greatest cause that makes her in deep loneliness is alienation that is part of behavioral loneliness. The effect of this is depression.
3. Jeri Lee's efforts to solve her loneliness are by drinking alcohol and consuming drugs. She takes these negative ways because she does not have religious background in her life so she does not have the power to control her attitude, especially when she faces the problem of loneliness. She does not consider that alcohol and drugs are bad for her body and almost religion forbids them. She thinks that alcohol and drugs are the effective ways to solve her loneliness, drinks can forget her problems and drugs can make her calm and feel better. Because of this, she gets a severe of chemical drug abused. For further medication she is sent to the hospital to do a therapy and then she can be alright.

B. Suggestion

Analyzing the novel The Lonely Lady, there are many lessons that can be taken for all human being. Related with the education, the writer will give some suggestions. It is hoped they will be useful for the teachers, students of English Department and the readers.

For the teachers, in teaching process knowing the personality of each student is very important. It can support them to be successful in delivering the theories to their students. Beside that he must not teach them about the theory of science only, but he must give the religious/moral value to them also. Beside making their life balance, it is also to control their attitude so when they face the problems in life especially like Jeri Lee has, they can control and deal with them.

The writer also proposes the suggestion for all students of English to give their attention to literature especially novel. He also suggests the students who are interested in studying literature, for looking at literature not only from literary aspects, but also psychological aspect, moral value or other aspects point of view in order to enrich their knowledge in life. In this regard, the writer suggests that this short study will be continued in more comprehensive forms.

Moreover, the writer also suggests that the readers of this novel draw lessons from the main character. They should posse self-controlled, high confidence, wide perspective, and be wise and careful so they can face their problem in life even it is hard. Beside that they should not to take the solution that has function in short time, but it has to in long period of time. In other word they must thinks first before making decision. This is purposed to keep them from wrong decision that can make them fall down deeper.
