

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

In this chapter the researcher would give conclusion and suggestion related to the research findings and discussion of the research.

A. CONCLUSION

Based on the findings and discussion described and analyzed in the chapter IV, the researcher finally comes to the conclusion concerning with the topic of the thesis, the conclusions are as follow:

1. From the findings and discussions, the researcher may conclude that the writers of the short story use compound word in their writing. In this research, the researcher fined at least four types of compound word proposed by Maria Irene as the main reference of this study. They are Endocentric compound, Exocentric compound, Copulative compound, and Appositional compound. Then the researcher found that endocentric compound that is mostly used in the writing in the writing of the Dark Brown Dog Story. It seems dominate the usage of the compound words in the writing of this short story, with the percentage 77.49 percent's, almost a half the data.

2. The researcher found 123 data containing forms of endocentric compound 63 data, exocentric 22 data, copulative 22 data and appositional 16 data. In percentage, they are, 77.49 % of the data of endocentric compound, 27.06 % of the data of exocentric and copulative compound and 19.68 % of the data of appositional compound.

B. SUGGESTION

Based on the entire presented, the researcher would give some suggestions as follows:

1. For the students

The researcher of this study hopes that this study could be a good contribution and reference for the students who want to do further research or learn more on the topic of compound word. Since it is now clear that compound word is not only limited to the field of Literature but also could be used as a main theory in a linguistics research for the students who are interested in.

2. For the short story's readers

The researcher suggests to the short story's readers to at least take a glance or learn more to the theory of compound words in order to have a better understanding about compound words and its function in the written short story. So, by doing it hopefully they could have a clear comprehension about the contents of the story they have read.

3. For the next researchers

The researcher realizes that this thesis is still far from being perfect. So, she expects that the next researcher could observe more deeply about this topic, for example about the intended meaning to what extent those compound word used.
