

CHAPTER 6

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

5.1 Conclusion

Based on the analysis results in this study, the researcher concludes that in the perception of fourth-semester students of the English Department at IAIN Kediri, Google Translate has an essential or significant contribution as a sophisticated online translator machine or application in helping the process of translating English-Indonesian text. Specifically, Google Translate contributes to the process of translating English-Indonesian text by providing many advantages for students; for example, the translation process becomes much more effective with a speedy process, translation becomes much more efficient with short translation times there is no translation fee. More importantly, Google Translate allows the students to quickly and easily enrich their vocabulary mastery. In addition, based on the results of this study, students' advantages by using the google translate application are about the speed with which this service can find the meaning of words, sentences, and even paragraphs that want to translate. However, because it is an application, of course, it is simpler than carrying a dictionary. Meanwhile, regarding the shortcomings of this application, students feel that they become lazy to learn Grammar by using Google Translate.

5.2 Suggestion

Google translate can be used not only for translating. This application can also be very helpful to learn sounds or pronunciation for students of English education study programs. It is the most often used to help the translation process from English to Indonesian. They do not need to open a manual dictionary which is more time-consuming when compared to using google translate. However, students must understand the google translate work system, that is, translating words and words to overcome their weaknesses and produce an accurate translation. They must correct the translation results by paying attention to grammar and choice of words, and various other considerations such as grammar, idioms, and slang. So, the mastery of grammar and knowledge of the context of the translated text is crucial for the students when they are translating English-Indonesian text using google translate application.

By considering the results of this study, namely, students' perceptions on the use of google translate are positive, so for further research, it is recommended to analyze in-depth the results of translation. By considering the results of this study, namely student perceptions of the use of google translate are positive; then for research that is Furthermore, it is suggested to analyze in-depth the results of the translation using google translate carried out by students. It is to provide feedback and considerations regarding the perception itself.