CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter conveys some conclusions of the findings in this study and suggestion for the next researchers or the reader.

A. Conclusion

The researcher makes a conclusion from the semiotic analysis in the anti-corruption module of KPK for University. The researcher analyzed the data by Peirce's triadic theory. According to the research question, what are the signs meaning found in anti-corruption education module of KPK for University? The sign meaning was decoded by the element of signs. The elements of sign were used to dig the signs meaning are Object included Icon, symbol, index, representamen, and interpretant. The result showed that there are the difference meaning of the seven data from each chapter anti-corruption education module of KPK for University. They are;

1. The datum 1 showed the sign meaning of the distribution of food access for poor program from Bulog eventually becomes corruption practices.
2. The effort of eradication and fight against corruption must be parallely supported by the government and the society to rich the well integrity.
3. The cause effect of corruption in Indonesia that was showed a wooden building that locate in a slum area. It delivered meaning through one of index the danger of corruption in Indonesia.

4. A lifestyle that can be the factor causing corruption.
5. The absence of parliamentarian of Indonesia
6. The situation of poverty of society, in the end, triggering a variety of other social insecurity that is increasingly frustrating society
7. Handling of corruption crimes that focus on the aspects of the provision of strict legal sanctions.

The researcher found the same meaning in the datum 2 and the datum 7 that symbolize the bribery. The bribery is represented by the combination of signs. They are Indonesian currency, envelope and the hands. In anti-corruption education module, KPK uses the different picture to describe the topic and the chapter.

B. Suggestion

The researcher would like to suggest the readers or the other researcher who concern on analyzing sign in a module or a book to study about the meaning of semiotics by Peirce and other experts. The researcher also suggests to learn comprehensively to get more the significant meaning of sign, or interpretation of something that stands for in the module or the book which have the elements of sign. Furthermore, the next research to continue in conducting research about semiotics because there are domain areas that is possible to be investigated. For other research, it is projected to other researcher that can use this study as the reference especially for those who investigated the semiotic feature in different object or subject.
