ABSTRACT

Dewanti, Azmi Puspa. 2023. “Loss and Gain in English Translation of Culture-Specific Items in Ahmad Tohari’s: Kind Looking Eyes”. Thesis. Department of English Language Education, Faculty of Tarbiyah, IAIN Kediri. Advisors:

(I) Dr. Fathor Rasyid, M.Pd. (II) Nurul Aini, M. Pd.

Keywords: loss and gain, translation, culture-specific items.

In this research, the primary objective is to identify the loss and gain of culture-specific items (CSIs) in the translation of Ahmad Tohari's anthology "Kind Looking Eyes". CSIs encompass cultural elements that are distinctive to a particular language or culture, presenting challenges in translation due to their cultural connotations and associations. Translating CSIs requires a deep understanding of both the source and target cultures, as they often lack direct equivalents in the target language. The study focuses on the semantic aspects of the translation process, aiming to delve into the intricate nature of translating CSIs and explore the potential losses or gains in meaning that occur. By examining the translation of CSIs in "Kind Looking Eyes," this research contributes to the broader understanding of the complexities involved in accurately conveying cultural nuances and preserving the intended meaning in translated works.

The research methodology employed in this study is qualitative research, which aims to generate descriptive data through a comprehensive analysis of words. The primary focus of the study is on culture-specific items (CSIs) found in both the source and target versions, with a specific emphasis on figurative language. The researcher serves as the main instrument, directly observing and collecting data. Supplementary instruments such as field notes assist in organizing and analyzing the data. The data collection process involves a combination of library research and the explicatory contrastive method, utilizing various primary and secondary sources. Subsequently, the collected data is analyzed by identifying and comparing the culture-specific items in the two versions. A semantic approach is employed to categorize the CSIs as either experiencing a loss or gain in translation. This method allows for a thorough exploration of the nuances and transformations that occur during the translation process of CSIs in "Kind Looking Eyes".

The result of this study indicates that the importance of employing semantic distinctive features in the English translation of 25 culture-specific items (CSIs) leading to the identification of 24 losses and 1 gain in the translation process. By applying Newmark's theory of categorizing CSIs, the CSIs were classified into five distinct groups; ecology, material culture, social culture, social organization, also gestures and habits. By employing Newmark's theory and categorizing the CSIs accordingly, this study enhances our understanding of the diverse cultural elements embedded in the translation process.
